MINNESOTA LINGO

Dudley Riggs invented improv as it is known today. Many audiences Riggs initially came across could be rowdy to downright hostile, so he began asking them for input and then the troupe would perform "instant theater" using the callouts from the audience. Riggs went on to create the Instant Theater Company in New York which became the Brave New Workshop upon moving to Minneapolis. Still thriving today, Brave New Workshop is now the nation's longest running live sketch comedy company.
