PHILOSOPHY

Sized right with a play on a classic tort theme, we add some energy to the buttoned-down look. You can bank on this style; it is a winner. The rich Mazzucchelli tort acetates add distinction while the base front colors make things approachable.

MINNESOTA LINGO

Huntington Bank Stadium, lovingly referred to as The Bank, is the first stadium on the University of Minnesota campus since 1981. It was also the first new stadium in the Big Ten conference since 1960. The East-West configuration allows for a view of downtown Minneapolis and boasts 50,805 seats with the ability to support expansion to 80,000 seats. This stadium also has the largest scoreboard in any college football-only stadium and was the first of any football stadium to achieve LEED certification. The perimeter of the first level includes the names of all 87 Minnesota counties cast in stone to pay tribute to the contribution by the taxpayers. The main western entrance is encompassed by the Minnesota Tribal Nations Plaza, named in honor of the 11 Native American nations in the state. On game day all 16 tailgating lots are full to maximum capacity and at game time, they meet at The Bank.
